He has the gravitas of a natural leader and possesses a giant intellect.

- Chambers & Partners, 2019

Can Yeginsu is a leading barrister practising in commercial litigation and international arbitration, civil fraud, professional liability, public law and human rights, and both private and public international law.

Can is consistently ranked by Chambers Global, Chambers UK Bar, and Legal 500 as an outstanding junior in five practice areas: (i) commercial litigation; (ii) international arbitration; (iii) administrative and public law; (iv) civil liberties and human rights; and (v) public international law.

In 2019, Can was shortlisted for the 'International Arbitration Junior of the Year' by Legal 500 and appointed to the independent High-Level Panel of Legal Experts on Media Freedom, convened by the former President of the UK Supreme Court, Lord Neuberger, and the UK's Special Envoy on Media Freedom, Amal Clooney, at the request of the UK and Canadian Governments.

Frequently appearing in the Commercial Court, Administrative Court, and the Chancery Division, Can has also acted in over 30 cases in the Court of Appeal, UK Supreme Court and the European Court of Human Rights. In addition, he has experience acting as co-counsel in proceedings before the ECOWAS Community Court of Justice, the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, the Federal Court of Malaysia, the Turkish Constitutional Court, and the Supreme Court of The Gambia. Can is admitted to the Bar of the DIFC Courts.

In his arbitral practice, Can is regularly instructed to act in commercial disputes under the LCIA, ICC, LMAA, and CIArb Rules, as well as in ad-hoc arbitrations under the UNCITRAL Rules. Can also has particular expertise in investor-state arbitration, including claims brought under the ICSID Rules and the ICSID Additional Facility Rules. He has received, and continues to accept, appointments as sole and co-arbitrator.

Can is Adjunct Professor of Law at Georgetown Law (Washington D.C.) and Koç University Law School (Istanbul) where he teaches investor-state arbitration. Can is also Lecturer-in-Law at Columbia Law School (New York) where he teaches international human rights law. He is the co-author of The Protections for Religious Rights: Law and Practice a leading practitioners' text, published by Oxford University Press, and Partner Fellow at the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law, University of Cambridge.

In 2013, Can was recognised as one of ten "Stars" practising at the Commercial Bar by Legal Week Magazine where he was identified as possibly one of "the Bar's true polymaths...able to advocate in a wide variety of legal areas, with seemingly effortless fluency".

Areas of Expertise

Civil Fraud

Can is regularly instructed in a range of civil fraud and asset recovery claims as a part of his strong wider commercial practice, and many of his cases are multi-jurisdictional in nature. He regularly acts in, and advises on, matters concerning:

- Conspiracy
- Breach of fiduciary duty
- Misappropriation of company assets
- Sham investment schemes
- Fraud by agents
- Civil contempt

The strength of Can's civil fraud practice was recognised by Legal Week Magazine which named him as one of ten "Stars at the Bar" working at the Commercial and Chancery Bar.

Can is well-versed in using the coercive powers of the High Court for the securing of evidence and the preservation, tracing and recovery of assets, including drafting and obtaining search, freezing and disclosure orders, travel restraint orders, and orders to obtain information from judgment debtors under CPR Part 71.

Explores the reasons behind the continuing popularity of England as a forum for the resolution of commercial disputes between foreign parties.

The first successful judicial review on Cart principles: R. (Kuteh) v Upper Tribunal - J.R. 2013, 18(1), 134-139

14 January 2013

Discusses the Administrative Court ruling in R. (on the application of Kuteh) v Upper Tribunal (Administrative Appeals Chamber) on whether the refusal of permission to appeal the First-tier Tribunal decision upholding the inclusion of a nurse on the Protection of Children and Vulnerable Adults lists was amenable to judicial review as: (1) the First-tier Tribunal had committed a serious procedural irregularity in ignoring evidence supporting the applicant's claim that he had assaulted a patient in self defence; and (2) the threat to his career was a "compelling reason" to allow the challenge.

Inquests and the "detachable" article 2 obligation: In Re McCaughey - J.R. 2011, 16(3), 290-296

12 September 2011

Discusses the Supreme Court judgment in Re McCaughey's Application for Judicial Review on whether the House of Lords decision in Re McKerr's Application for Judicial Review, ruling that an inquest into deaths occurring before the Human Rights Act 1998 entered into force need not meet the procedural requirements of the European Convention on Human Rights 1950 art.2, should be overruled as a consequence of the European Court of Human Rights ruling in Silih v Slovenia (71463/01) that, in certain circumstances, art.2 imposed freestanding procedural obligations.

1 August 2011

Discusses the implications for sport of the coming into force of the Bribery Act 2010 on July 1, 2011. Outlines the key provisions of the Act and comments on its scope. Provides a comparison between the Act and the US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act 1977. Provides illustrative case examples of the Act's potential significance in terms of awarding the rights to stage events and corporate hospitality and entertainment at sporting events. Advises on steps that can be taken to minimise the risk of incurring liability.

Conditional fee agreements and human rights: MGN Limited v United Kingdom - J.R. 2011, 16(2), 151-155

15 March 2011

Comments on the European Court of Human Rights judgment in MGN Ltd v United Kingdom (39401/04) on whether: (1) the award of damages to the model Naomi Campbell for breach of confidence, following a newspaper's publication of details and photographs relating to her treatment for drug addiction, was a disproportionate interference with the applicant's rights under the European Convention on Human Rights 1950 art.10; and (2) the success fees claimed by Ms Campbell's solicitors and counsel on top of their base costs under the terms of a conditional fee agreement breached art.10.

Smith (Oxfordshire Coroner) in the Supreme Court - J.R. 2010, 15(4), 356-365

10 December 2010

Comments on the Supreme Court judgment in R. (on the application of Smith) v Oxfordshire Assistant Deputy Coroner on whether British service personnel serving overseas remained within the UK's jurisdiction for the purpose of determining if they retained the rights conferred by the European Convention on Human Rights 1950. Considers whether the death of a soldier should have been made subject to an inquest satisfying the procedural and investigative standards implicitly required by art.2 of the Convention.

Discusses the 12 September 2010 constitutional referendum in Turkey.

Storm in a teacup: domestic and international conservatism from the Corner House case - J.R. 2008, 13(4), 267-272

12 December 2008

Considers the House of Lords decision in R. (on the application of Corner House Research) v Director of Serious Fraud Office on whether the respondent's submission to the threat that Saudi Arabia would no longer assist the UK with counter-terrorism intelligence if a corruption investigation was not discontinued had been unlawful on the ground that it had not shown that there had been no alternative. Discusses whether this standard unduly restricted the respondent's discretion. Assesses the court's jurisdiction to consider whether the decision complied with the OECD Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions 1997 art.5.

Religious Liberty in British Courts: A Critique and Some Guidance - 49 HARV. INT'L L.J. 28 (2008)

11 April 2008

For centuries, religious liberty in Britain existed as a broad-ranging but principally negative freedom at common law. Individuals were permitted to do as they pleased in matters of faith, unless the law stated otherwise. Religious liberty, thus conceived, was more passive toleration of religion than any active promotion of religious freedom as a fundamental right. All that changed on October 2, 2000...
