Absolutely outstanding: he is the complete counsel

- Chambers & Partners

Daniel Saoul QC has a commercial practice encompassing business disputes, sports law and public law. He is one of the leading barristers practising in these fields.

He took silk in 2019, after just ten years at the Bar, and was recognised by the legal press as one of the most outstanding barristers taking silk that year. He is described as "the complete counsel", as an "outstanding advocate" who "commands the court", and as being "excellent strategically" and "exceptionally good to work with". He is also described as having "a brilliant intellect" and "thoroughly commercial instincts".

The legal directories rank him as a leading silk in six areas: commercial dispute resolution, international arbitration, civil fraud, professional negligence, sports law and costs litigation. Prior to taking silk he was also a member of the Attorney General's Panel of Counsel, and he continues to advise UK Government departments and agencies on sensitive and complex legal matters.

His practice is wide-ranging, spanning the full spectrum of commercial, civil fraud, banking and finance and professional negligence matters, as well as sports law. He is also instructed on cases involving public and regulatory law, often connected to his other areas of practice. His work is frequently international in nature, including English Court litigation involving cross-border legal issues or foreign law, and includes an extensive international arbitration practice as well as instructions in relation to litigation in overseas jurisdictions, in particular offshore. The cases in which he is instructed often involve allegations of dishonesty or other intentional wrongdoing and he has been instructed in some of the biggest commercial fraud cases to come before the English Courts in recent years.

His work also frequently arises out of, or is connected to, corporate collapse, and he has substantial experience of related areas of insolvency law and insurance law. He is also an expert in the law relating to solicitors' costs, typically acting in matters connected with substantial commercial litigation.

He has appeared in leading cases across all of his areas of expertise, both at trial and appellate level, including as advocate in the Supreme Court. He is a highly experienced cross-examiner and also has substantial experience of heavyweight and often urgent applications, including for freezing and other injunctive relief as well as for committal for contempt of Court, in respect of which he has appeared in a number of legally groundbreaking cases.

Recent comments from Chambers & Partners, Legal 500 and Who's Who Legal include:

Areas of Expertise

Banking & Finance

Dan has a strong banking and finance practice.

He has first hand experience of the industry having spent time at two investment banks, in London and Paris, prior to qualifying as a lawyer, both on the trading floor as well as in the back office.

His work frequently involves a significant banking or finance element, including very substantial claims arising out of complex loan and guarantee arrangements (including in the context of sovereign finance issues), disputes relating to sophisticated financial instruments including swaps and other derivatives (including under ISDA agreements) and matters relating to hedge funds, private equity funds and other forms of investments.

His caseload also frequently involves cases arising in a banking or finance context and involving allegations of fraud or other wrongdoing.
