The COVID-19 challenge: insurance coverage in the time of lock-down

1 April 2020

In this article written for Thomson Reuters Practical Law, Neil Hext QC and Mark Cullen of 4 New Square provide guidance on the main types of insurance cover that are potentially relevant in relation to losses resulting from COVID-19. In particular, they consider whether insurance cover might be available under business interruption, event cancellation, employer's liability, D&O, credit and travel insurance policies.

Case Note on Ocean Finance & Mortgages Limited v Oval Insurance Broking Limited and Senior Wright Limited, Publication: Insurance Law London

2 February 2016

In this judgment, Mr Justice Cooke had to determine the comparative responsibility of placing and producing brokers for failing to advise an insured to make a "block notification" of "circumstances that may give rise to a claim" against a backdrop of PPI mis-selling.

Soland v Clifford Harris: warehousing litigation an abuse of process, Publication: Practical Law Dispute Resolution Blog

22 December 2015

The judgment of Arnold J in Solland v Clifford Harris highlights that unilaterally “warehousing” a claim (that is, putting a claim on hold without intending to pursue it) can amount to an abuse of process, even if a claimant subsequently decides to pursue the claim.

Case Note on Luffeorm Limited v Kitsons LLP, Publication: Professional Negligence Bar Association Newsletter

8 October 2015

The Claimant brought professional negligence proceedings against a firm of solicitors who had acted on its behalf in a transaction involving the purchase of a pub business. The case contains an unorthodox analysis of the burden of proof, and considers once again the challenging boundary line between commercial and legal advice. PNBA membership required.

Procedural Fairness in an Information Rights Context, Judicial Review, 20:1, 26-32

1 June 2015

Considers (with Tom Pascoe, Brick Court Chambers) the tension between fairness and reliance on closed material in the information rights context.
