Paul Parker is a specialist in professional liability claims involving accountants, financial services professionals, lawyers, insurance brokers and construction professionals.

He advises on professional regulatory matters and has substantial experience of appearing before disciplinary tribunals and in the higher courts on appeal. He does a variety of general commercial and chancery commercial work, with particular emphasis on insurance law.

Paul relishes the challenge of advocacy and is known for his tenacity, working hard to attain the trial barrister’s ideal: complete mastery of a brief, control of the evidence and the ear of the court. He revels in difficult cases where there are obstinate witnesses or dogmatic experts to be cracked.

In a climate in which mediation has become the dispute resolution method of first choice, Paul has developed a considerable level of experience, guiding lay and professional clients through the mediation process, drafting mediation position papers, devising negotiation strategies and handling mediation advocacy.

“Excellent at pleadings”, “very diligent, very thorough and offers detailed forensic analysis. He is very good at intricate legal arguments” (Chambers & Partners) and “consistently well thought of,” Paul Parker is recognised as a leading recommended junior in the fields of professional negligence and professional discipline. Legal Week has reported Paul to be “fantastic with clients and you get excellent advocacy every time”. And “great fun to work with” as well! The Legal 500 has time and again over recent years listed him amongst its highly regarded juniors and Paul has also been selected for inclusion in the Legal Business publication Legal Experts in the field of professional indemnity litigation every year since 2001.

Expertise

Commercial Chancery

Much of Paul's work in this area overlaps with other aspects of his practice. His current and recent caseload includes:

- advising a charity on potential claims arising out of a failed land development
- acting in tax planning negligence claims brought by beneficiaries and/or executors in cases following Rind v Theodore Goddard [2008] EWHC 419 (Ch); [2008] PNL R 24, in which he had acted for the defendant solicitors
- representing insurers in a substantial action to trace money and assets lost through breach of trust and fraud
- representing the trustees of a pension fund in claims involving knowing receipt and dishonest assistance
- advising and acting in breach of warranty of authority claims where companies' ownership is disputed

Corporate and Commercial

Paul's practice involves a wide range of spheres of corporate and commercial activity, including:

Sale and Supply of Goods and Services

Current and recent cases include:

- advising in a catering supplies dispute between contractors and an education authority
- acting in connection with a defects claim relating to a consignment of reconnaissance helicopters
- representing a further education college in a large claim by an educational services provider
- advising on distribution agreements concerning the DSS estate
- advising on breaches of agreements in the gas and electricity supply industries
- acting for the suppliers of window fittings and furniture in a claim brought by a local authority concerning the refurbishment of council flats and houses
- advising on taxi franchises at a UK airport
- acting in product liability dispute concerning complex programmable industrial machinery
- acting in a fine art theft case

Confidentiality

A considerable proportion of Paul's lawyers' liability, disciplinary and regulatory work relates to issues concerning actual or potential conflict of interest and other aspects of confidentiality. He has been actively involved in a series of cases concerning the disclosure of solicitors' files to lenders.

Paul successfully barred a firm of solicitors from acting in construction litigation in Re a firm of Solicitors [1999] PNL R 950 (conflicts of interest and "chinese walls").

Computer Contracts & Information Technology

Paul has acted in complex and lengthy computer software disputes tried in the London and provincial TCC. Issues have included:

- the extent to which the customer had provided an adequate specification for the provision of bespoke and modified standard software
- the customer's competence to operate the system
- the nature and quality of training provided by the supplier
- the distinction between bugs and defects
- the applicability of the supplier's exclusion clauses
- the quantification of the customer's loss of profits claim

Cases include BIT Group Ltd v. Housing Units Ltd (1999) TCC unreported, and others settled on confidential terms.

Paul is the author of the chapter on IT Professionals in Jackson & Powell: Professional Liability Precedents.

Construction & Engineering

Paul's construction practice currently focuses to the greater extent on the liability of construction professionals. This and his reported cases include:

- acting for the defendant quantity surveyors in Dhamija v. McBains Cooper [2010] EWHC 2396 (TCC), a leading case deciding that the scope of the quantity surveyor's duty to make interim valuations does not extend to having to bring defective works to the contract administrator's attention
- advising on potential claims against the professional team in connection with the design and construction of a vocational ballet school
- acting for the employer in a substantial claim against engineers regarding the foundation design of a major London hotel
- defending engineers in connection with the foundation and floor slab design of a warehouse complex in the North East
- Cheal v. Hale Allen (1997) 59 Con LR 156: use of expert evidence in an engineers' negligence action
- Wilson v. Le Fevre Wood & Royle [1996] PNLR 107: date of knowledge (Limitation Act 1980 s.14A) in an architects' liability action
- led by Anthony Thornton QC (now HHJ Thornton QC) in a long geotechnical engineers' negligence action in 1994

Paul also has lengthy experience of a considerable range of construction disputes, litigating and arbitrating for and against employers, contractors and sub-contractors.

Past cases include:

- involvement in actions concerning property developers such as Charles Church and Barratt Homes; past clients include Higgs & Hill/HBG Construction
- representing the design engineers in a substantial action concerning a pipeline in south Atlantic
- acting in contaminated land claims and m&e engineers' negligence actions
- acting for the employer in an £8 million claim against an architect and the contractor concerning the refurbishment of office and residential space in central London
- defending the suppliers of window fittings and furniture in a claim brought by a local authority concerning the refurbishment of council flats and houses
- numerous claims concerning residential refurbishments, extensions and rebuilds

Featured Construction & Engineering cases

- Dhamija v. McBains Cooper [2010] EWHC 2396 (TCC); Acting for the defendant quantity surveyors in this leading case deciding that the scope of the quantity surveyor's duty to make interim valuations does not extend to having to bring defective works to the contract administrator's attention.
- Cheal v. Hale Allen (1997) 59 CON LR 156; Use of expert evidence in an engineers' negligence action.
- Wilson v. Le Fevre Wood & Royle [1996] PNLR 107; Date of knowledge (Limitation Act 1980 s.14A) in an architects' liability action.

Disciplinary

"His advice is concise and he clearly has great experience in this field. He puts clients at their ease and was very helpful in persuading a difficult client to accept our advice." – Legal 500, 2023

"An exceptional advocate before accountancy disciplinary hearings and committees. Outstanding case preparation." – Legal 500, 2022

"He's not a fence-sitter. He took an early view of the case and was right. He also produces excellent drafting." – Chambers & Partners, 2022

"Concise, considered and pragmatic." – Legal 500, 2020

“He has great insight into how accountancy firms work, how to navigate their issues and how to respond to regulatory investigations.” “He has a commercial and practical approach to accountancy disciplinary work and risk management.” “A bold defence advocate. His robust but client-friendly approach has secured many successful outcomes for accountants and insolvency practitioners.” – Chambers & Partners, 2020

“He has unflappable forensic technique, even in the face of difficulty.” – Legal 500, 2019

“Very technical and ferocious on his feet.” – Chambers & Partners, 2019

A large amount of Paul’s advisory work in this area concerns professional conduct: telling professionals, especially lawyers, what they can and cannot do in private professional practice, with a view to avoiding referrals to regulators.

But of course Paul also regularly advises in connection with conduct-related complaints, particularly to the LCS and the SRA. He has advised extensively on regulatory and disciplinary issues concerning breaches of SARs – both fraudulent (including advisory involvement in the Marrache scandal in Gibraltar) and non-fraudulent – separate business structures, introductions and referrals, publicity, and proper standards of work in private client, conveyancing and litigation matters.

He has substantial recent experience of defending in proceedings particularly before the Solicitors’ Disciplinary Tribunal and the disciplinary committees of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants and the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England & Wales.

Issues with which he is most familiar have included:

- inadequate keeping of accounts
- dishonesty in falsifying evidence
- conflict of interest and duty
- secret profits
- giving professional undertakings
- failure to keep up to date with professional guidance
- inadequate professional services
- restoration to the Roll

Forthcoming hearings concern block conveyancing abroad / costs information / compliance with LCS adjudications / fee sharing / referral issues in accident claims.

Paul’s recently contested cases in the SDT include:

- Thakerar 10693-2011; Restoration to the Roll; absence of exceptional circumstances.
- Thompson, Khan & Khan 10438-2010; Proper standard of work issues in an immigration practice.
- Hardman & Sgoluppi 10341-2009; Conveyancing practice / fee sharing / referrals.
- Hodgson & Hartley 9658-2007; Miners’ compensation claims.
- Lewis 9708-2007; SAR issues.
- Moon 9599-2006; Licensed conveyancer, s.43 order.

Financial Services Regulation

Paul is regularly instructed in claims involving financial services consultants. He has particular experience of home income plans and similar, as well as life assurance and pensions mis-selling.

He is familiar with regulatory matters under the FSMA 2000 (and its predecessors).

Current and recent cases include:

- advising insurance intermediaries as to statutory regulation/ approval
- advising investors caught up in a viatical scheme fraud
- involvement in numerous cases relating to pensions mis-selling
- challenge to the vires of a pensions review award made by the Personal Investment Authority Ombudsman: R. v. P.I.A Ombudsman Bureau Ltd, ex parte Davies Walters & Associates Ltd. [2001] EWHC Admin 1159
- brief involvement in the Equitable Life litigation prior to its settlement

Insurance

Paul regularly advises as to coverage and exclusions in policies of insurance which arise in three contexts:

- straight insurance claims – in particular fire, business interruption claims and D&O (directors and officers) policy issues
- insurance brokers' negligence actions – he has a thorough familiarity with the underlying insurance obtained by the broker: recent examples of the types of insurances covered in this context are E.L. (employers' liability), P.I. (professional indemnity), E&O (errors and omissions), D&O and Business Interruption
- general professional indemnity work – his recent cases include issues arising out of conveyancing fraud and title protection, non-disclosure in an engineers' case, late notification by architects/engineers, definition of insured perils in a valuers' case and making fraudulent claims in an engineers' case

His specific recent experience of insurance coverage issues includes:

- advising a world leader in advanced aftermarket automotive diagnosis as to D&O policy interpretation, notification and non-disclosure issues, aggregation, and the applicability of exclusions in the context of accessory liability, vicarious liability and joint liability for alleged infringement of intellectual property rights
- acting for brokers in Yechiel v Kerry London Ltd [2010] EWHC 215 (Comm) successfully upholding insurers' declinature
- representing solicitors at indemnity conferences
- advisory work for both insurers and professional insureds in connection with:
  - successor practice issues
  - insurable interests of ex-partners and ostensible partners
  - aggregation
  - late and non-notification issues
  - exclusions relating to the nature of the business insured
  - cooperation clauses
  - misrepresentation and non-disclosure on renewal and during the life of the policy
  - moral hazard
  - fraud and ex turpi causa
  - interpretation of clauses relating to critical illness cover
  - fortuity

Professional Liability
